The characteristics, trends of labour trafficking in areas affected by organized crime (gangmaster system)

- ▶ There have been several recent cases of “urban caporalato” or ‘digital caporalato’. It is frequent:
 - ▶ Among workers in a vulnerable position (migrant, does not speak the language, is in economic need...)
 - ▶ In labour-intensive sectors where no particular skills are required
- ▶ The distinctive feature with respect to the general case is that there is often an organization that illicitly deals with the recruitment, transportation and organization of workers’ lives.
